AMUSEMENTS.

ITALIAN OPERA-FAUST.

Gounod's opera "Faust" was presented at the Acadcur of Music last evening, before an audience rather ruerite, Mmc. Pappenheim; Siebel, Miss Annandale; Faust, Mr. Tom Karl; Mephistophetes, Mr. Reina; Calentine, Mr. Tagliapetra. The performance was not a successful one. Either Mme. Pappenheim was seriusly indisposed or she must have deteriorated consid rably in her interpretation of Greichen since she had ang it in German in this city. It was not an mpersonation at all commensurate with the standard of operatic excellence to be expected from her, judging from her former efforts on the American stage. There from her former efforts on the American stage. There were some bright exceptions to the general inefficiency of the impersonation, but we have had so many takented representatives of the rôle at the Academy that a different style of Gretchen is demanded nowadays. The weakness, if not a more emphatic term be required, of the rest of the cast may have had a paralyzing influence on the prima donna. There was, however, one exception to the general inefficiency, and that was the Videntine of Signor Taginapotra. Mile Anna de Belocca appears this afternoon as Rosina in "Il Barbiere di Seviglia" and on Wednesday in "Mignon."

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES. The grand mass of the late Carl Ansobutz will be sung at Steinway Hall on Sunday evening.

Signor Alices gives his annual musical solrée at Chickering Hall this evening, assisted by his pupils and several artists.

The last symphony concert of Theodore Thomas takes place this evening at Steinway Hall, with one of the

it is said that the Frog Opera will be given again by the Mount Vernon Aid Society at the Union League Theatre early next week. The managers have been anable to supply the demand for tickets, as they have persevered in issuing only the number that the seats of the theatre will accommodate,

The Philharmonic Society gave their last public rehearsal yesterday afternoon at the Academy of Music, with the following programme ;- Beethoven's Fourth Symphony; Tschatkovsky's overture, "Romeo and Juliet." and Mendelssohn's overture, "A Calm Sea and Happy Voyage." Mr. S. B. Mills played Chopin's First verture, opus 11, and Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 10. magnificently. The concert takes place tonight, the same programme being observed.

Miss Gertie Emanuel, a very clever young contralto artist, gave a very interesting concert last night at Samuels, soprano, and Messrs. Fritsch, White, Stoddard, Werner, Davis and Torriant. Miss Emanuel has a rich, agreeable voice, that in time may be rendered capable of interpreting great works, but she should not at present venture upon such an aria as "Che faro

OBITUARY.

SAMUEL WOODWARD.

Samuel Woodward, Esq., an esteemed citizen of died at his residence on the evening of the 19th inst. Mr. Woodward was born in Westmoreland, and moved to Gilsum in 1835. In 1853 he moved to Keene, purto Gilsum in 1835. In 1853 he moved to Keene, purchasing the American News, a weekly paper established by Beniah Cook a few years previous. In 1856 he purchased the New Hampshire Sentinel, and united the two papers, and was editor and publisher until 1859. He served the town as Representative for several years, was a member of the Board of Education, President of the Keene Five Cents Savings Bank, and was always interested in all projects that were beneficial to the town. A man of positive opinions on all important subjects, he enjoyed the confidence of his fellow citizens, and his death is universally regretted. He was in the seventy-third year of his age, and had been a member of the Baptist Church for nearly fifty years.

DISPENSARIES.

DR. WILLIAM S. LUDLUM UPON THEIR ORIGIN, PROGRESS AND EFFICIENCY.

At a regular monthly meeting of the New York Medical Journal Association, hold last evening at the half of the New York Academy of Medicine, No. 12 at Thirty-first street, Dr. William S. Ludlum, of No. 309 West Thirty-fifth street, read a paper entitled, Dispensaries; Their Origin, Progress and Efficiency, which was listened to by the members of the associa. tion present with great attention, and created a discussion among them, of about an hour's length, regard the reader had chosen for the subject of his discourse The meeting was presided over by Dr. E. G. Loring President of the association, and among the gentleme present who participated in the argument were Drs. Gouverneur Smith, John M. Kaox, Fred. E. Mather, cipal dispensaries of the city were represented at the meeting. The following is a synopsis of the paper read by Dr. Ludium, in which, it should be here said, the reader borrowed liberally from other writers and speakers of recent date on the topic:-

In contrast with hospitals dispensaries are of comparatively recent establishment, and it is curious that so little has been collected in relation to their origin and history. It may surprise my hearers to learn that the enevelopastias, those books of universi reference, are almost barren of information upon the subject, a this remark applies not only to those in our language, but also to the more elaborate works of the kind in France and Germany. Even in the very last of these productions, the "American Encyclopædia," the word dispensary does not even occur. appears strange to us that among nations refined and cultivated as the Romans and the Greeks, no hospital or institution where the sick could be taken care of was established. The first hospital of which we have any knowledge was founded by a benevolent bishop named Nonus, at Edessa, in sick could be taken care of was established. The first hospital of which we have any knowledge was founded by a benevolent bishop name! Nonus, at Edessa, in Mesopotamia, A. D. 460, a place then tamous for its school of theology, and the first institution of the kind in Europe was built in the same century at Rome by Fabiota, a Roman lady. In the sense, however, in which we understand it, an institution devoted exclusively to the reception and care of the sick, the hospital cannot be said to have existed until the eleventh century. Attached to nearly every monastery was an "almonry," from which we get our modern word "almshouse," The almoner visited the sick at their places of abode. This office necessarily possessed some little knowledge of medicine, but it was very limited. The art of medicine had then made but little progress. Bleeding was the remely almost universally resorted to. In that age, however, the almoner was of inestimable value to the poor. As the knowledge of medicine advanced physicians began to city physician. He prescribed for the poor and received from the city in Lonorable recognition of his services certain household benefits, such as his yearly firewood or a pipe of wine, in addition to which he was repaid for the medicines he supplied to the poor.

After the dissolution of fanonasteries the duties of the almoner were very much neglected. A want was felt, and this led to the origin of the modern dispensaries, the first step toward which occurred in the middle of the sixteenth century, and for which the world is inachted to a woman. In A. D. 1559, the wife of Duke Christopher, then requiring Duke or Wirtenberg, caused an apothecary's shop to be created in the ducal pedace at Stuttgart, for the purpose of supplying medicine to the poor, which she maintaimed at her own expense. In 1660 here example was followed by the wife of Pullip II, of Grubeshangen, a princess of Brunswick. In 1631, the Electress Anne, a Danish princess, established another apothecary's shop at the Court of Dresden, which deaths from smallpox, as from 1841 to 1851, there were only 12,723 deaths by the same disease from 1801 to 1861.

A telegram from Lancaster, Pa., of the 21st inst., reports as follows:—Hon. O. J. Dickey, formerly member of Congress from this district, died at his residence in this city this morning, aged fifty-four years. Mr. Dickey had been ill with typhoid fever and pneumania for the past eight weeks.

LATER.

St. Louis, April 21, 1876. Mollie Dean, the young woman shot by William Cooper this morning, died this afternoon, and Cooper is in hospital and expected to die any moment. It appears Cooper had paid addresses to Miss Dean for some time, but of late she had attempted to break with him, she being engaged to another man. To-day Cooper called at the house where Miss Dean lived, and she went out into the garden with him, but after a few moments' conversation she uttered a scream and ran toward the house. Cooper followed and fired two shots, both of which entered the girl's head, and she fell to the ground mortally wounded. Cooper then put the pistol to his own head and sent a bullet through his brain.

NOTICE TO MERCHANTS AND CAPTAINS

Morchants, shipping agents and shipmasters are informed that by telegraphing to the HERALD London Bureau, ad-dressing "Bennett, No 40 Ploet street, London," or to the Paris office, addressing "Bennett, 41 Avenue de l'Opera, Paris," the arrivals at and departures from European and Eastern ports of American and all foreign vessels trading with the United States, the same will be cabled to this country free of charge.

Captains arriving at and sailing from Prench and Mediterranean ports will find the Paris office the more economical and expeditious for telegraphing news.
